

Singapore could experience more heavy storms with climate change. By adding green roofs and rain gardens to new buildings, developers can help to slow down the flow of rainwater to the drains and reduce flood risks.